PROFILE OF THE COLLEGE

The College was started in June 1964 under the name Commerce College, Shillong, as a purely private college in G. S. Road, Shillong. It was shifted to the present land and building on 1st May 1967. Temporary affiliation was granted by the Guwahati University up to B.Com (Pass Course) in 1967.

The College was closed down by the Governing Body from 1st April 1977 due to mis-management by the College Authorities, and was de-affiliated by NEHU. The services of the Principal, Teaching Staff and Office Staff were also terminated by the Governing Body.

The management of the college was taken over by the Government of Meghalaya by an Act of 1984 adopted by the Meghalaya Legislative Assembly and duly assented by the President of India on 17th November 1984.

The college was re-opened from 28th May 1986 as Shillong Commerce College, with PU Commerce classes (Class XI and XII) in the same land and building duly improved, renovated and repaired after permission for reopening was granted by NEHU authorities. Initially provisional affiliation was granted for 3 years only by the University for PU Commerce from 11th September 1987. However, the college is affiliated to the North Eastern Hill University for under graduate, B.Com (Hons.) classes. The college is now recognized by the UGC under 2F in January 1989 and under 12B in June 2003.

In the beginning the college started with a full time Principal who came on deputation from the Government of Meghalaya, 7 full time lecturers and 6 full time office staff with a strength of only 120 students for the session 1987-88. Now the college has 25 full time lecturers and 15 office staff with strength of 1150 students: 748 Degree students & 402 Higher Secondary for the session 2015-2016.

In a very short span of time the college has been able to produce students who have done remarkably well in their lives. Yet the college still needs to achieve more in terms of quality education. In this respect it is felt that the process of Assessment and Accreditation is a great opportunity to go beyond our daily routine and get involved in the extremely satisfying process of overhauling and self learning. It is hoped that something good would definitely emerge out of the assessment, which would thus create a better academic climate in the college.

The College has grown in terms of number of faculty members, students, co- curricular and extracurricular programs. We are open to students of all communities. A large proportion of our students are first generation learners in the arena of higher education. We strive tirelessly to upgrade skills and knowledge, impart values and guide our students to take their place as responsible citizens of India.

The College strives to provide holistic education to the students. The Self Study Report is a culmination of our efforts and we look forward to a rewarding interaction with the NAAC Peer Team to accredit our institution.

VISION

Vision of Shillong Commerce college is to be an accessible, responsive and inclusive college delivering excellent programmes of teaching and outreach that improve the lives and opportunities of students - primarily for the economically disadvantaged- of the state and the region as a whole.

MISSION

The educational mission of the Institute is the promotion of learning - learning by the students and the faculty. Central to our mission are our goals, which are to foster excellence in our teaching, scholarship and service, to prepare students with attitudes, skills and habits of lifelong learning and with leadership skills, enabling them to be useful members of the global society.

About Aspire Meghalaya

At the heart of Meghalaya's youth development strategy is the belief that youth engagement, aspiration-building and self-efficacy nurtured through personal development and talent recognition interventions are indispensable to the State's efforts in significantly improving youth potential and employability.

While the vision of the government is to nurture a skill and talent for all youth and ensure that every youth has access to livelihood opportunities, it is important that we first identify their innate capabilities so we can align their aspirations with skilling opportunities that are relevant. The foundational soft skills and talent recognition modules under Aspire Meghalaya will lay the groundwork for further endeavours by the State Government to support the skilling needs of our youth communities across Districts.

The Aspire Meghalaya programme is a flagship initiative of the Government of Meghalaya designed to unlock the confidence, talent and potential of youth across the State through a combination of soft skills programmes and talent identification interventions.

Shillong Commerce College was selected as one of the colleges in the district for its students to be trained in a 12-day long programme by Avenues. The whole programme was a success as we had a number of 380 students joining the programme. 1st concern :

As per the study it could be identified that dairy marketing usually included two levels of distribution namely :

Primary Market : these market are located in villages headquarters or at the cross roads ,milk are collected from villages through the registered units which are then processed packed in small packages and distributed through different vendors ,these market are situated at Umlynka , Umseh , Ri-Bhoi, Mawryngkneng.

Secondary Market : it covers wide coverage area usually it is collection points which assembles the milk and brings for the serving of large areas of consumers , it consist of one or more wholesale market in few locally known retailers example “ NA RI ESSENTIALS HUB “located at Umsning , mawlai,Sohra, Tynrai Multipurpose Cooperative Society Stores Pynthorbah, jp store , KG departmental store Nongmynsong , NEMCOS Neigrihms, Azad Lyngdoh Departmental Store Laban. And the marketing coverage of milk is at other districts as well.

Although many problems and constraints that may hamper the development of the dairy sector were identified in the study area, the majority of dairy farmers were willing to continue, expand and/or involve in dairying in the future. The rest of the farmers were not willing to expand dairying in the future for various reasons. Smallholder dairy farming is increasingly gaining importance as a source of family income.

IMPACT OF COVID-19 ON STREETS VENDORS IN SHILLONG

Research Methodology:

This study follows a mixed method of qualitative and quantitative approach. The primary data were collected through the fieldwork. The fieldwork was carried out in Shillong (East Khasi Hills District). The three areas selected were Iewduh (Bara Bazar), Polo and Mawlai. These areas were purposely selected as the majority of street vendors working there can be found to have varying demographic characteristics and socio-economic status. A total of 64 respondents were selected for the study, selecting 21 street vendors from Mawlai, 21 street vendors from Polo and 22 street vendors from Iewduh.

The study adopted the technique of interview and schedule for data collection. The questions (both open-ended and close ended) were formulated in order to collect the requisite data. Questions were designed to elicit information on the personal profile, work profile, income status of the respondents. Secondary sources that were collected from available books, articles, report and journals have been used as well.

Suggestions and Discussion:

When asked about the suggestions to improve the condition of the street vendors, many street vendors in Shillong suggested that the State Government should provide proper, non-disturbing, safe and secure places for street vendors to conduct their business. It should provide a proper place for them to shelter themselves from the heat, cold, rain and storm etc. It should create an awareness from time to time, on how to maintain cleanliness and provide a proper wastage management system.

The findings of this study reveal that street vendors in Shillong are mostly married women from low-income families, uneducated or drop-outs before 10th class. Poverty is one of the reasons for choosing vending as there is no alternative to take up other jobs. Most of the street vendors are road side vendors and have temporary shelters. These sections of the society were mostly affected during and after the pandemic even though the State Government and some associations are coming forward for aid during the period. The study reveals that the State Government's delayed and inadequate handling out of grants, and the few number of associations available fail to meet the requirement of the street vendors during and after the pandemic. As we get used to the new normal, the Government should take initiative to ensure that all vendors are able to access to social security of different kind and financial aid during period of crises.

It can be pointed out that future studies should be made in order to have a deeper understanding of the hardship which the street vendors are facing especially during crises such as pandemic which can provide a more detailed, practical and feasible policies.

REPORT ON THE FIELD TRIP TO NONGKHLAW

ORGANISED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY ON THE 12TH MAY, 2023

The Department of History organised a field trip to Nongkhlaw on the 12th May 2023 for the 4th and 6th semester honours students. There were a total number of 18 students along with four faculty members, Asst Prof. Dr. L. Pyrngap, Asst Prof. Sophia C. Kurbah, Asst Prof. Sashi T. Laloo and Asst Prof. Marbiangdor Myrthong. The trip to Nongkhlaw and the surrounding areas was important to the students as the place witnessed the Anglo-Khasi War of 1829 led by U Tirot Sing Syiem the Chief of Hima Khadsawphra and other Khasi Chiefs. The consequences of the war resulted in the advent of the colonial rule in the Khasi Hills.

The trip commenced from the college premises at 8.30 am and the first stop enroute to Nongkhlaw was Ka Phan Nonglait falls at Nongrmai village, a waterfall that commemorated the valor of Ka Phan Nonglait a woman who sacrificed her life for the uprising. On reaching Nongkhlaw, we stopped for lunch and then proceeded to Krem Pyrda (Pyrda Cave) and Krem Siej Tyra (Siej Tyra Cave). The different chambers in the caves were used by Tirot Sing and his warriors to conduct secret meetings at the same time sought shelter during the war.

The next destination was U Maw Bishar or the Judgement Stone of Tirot Sing, which was probably the place where the Khasi Durbar was presided as reflected in the account of Major A. White in 1826. We then proceeded towards the remaining part of the David Scott trail – a road project that aimed to connect the British territories of the Brahmaputra Valley (Assam) and the Surma Valley (Sylhet) in the 1830s. In many ways, the construction of this road and the confiscation of the Khasi lands in the Brahmaputra valley brought so much suspicion and insecurities to the people that eventually led to the commencement of the war in 1829.

We left Nongkhlaw at 2.40 pm and halted for a tea break at Mairang, then reached Shillong in the evening at 6pm. The fieldtrip was important for the students of the 6th Semester as Unit I of their Paper 8 (North-East India, 1824-1972) revolves around these historical events. As for the 4th semester students, their Paper 4, Unit IV (Historiography), topics like Social History and Subaltern History was implied with the Anglo-Khasi War.

REPORT ON STUDY TOUR- DEPARTMENT OF KHASI

Meghalaya is laden with natural beauty; therefore, a lot of the tourists from outside come and visit our state to spend their holidays. Meghalaya consist of places like Sohra (also known as Cherrapunjee) and Mawsynram which receives the highest rainfall in the world, such places attract many tourist to visit the state each year. Other than housing the wettest place on earth, Meghalaya also has many natural attractions that draw in tourists not only from other states in India but from other countries as well. Some of these tourist spots are mingled with the local myths and stories of the Khasi as well as the traditional beliefs of the Khasi community like Nohkalikai falls, Daiñthlen falls, Khoh Ramhah, etc.

Hence, the Khasi Department of Shillong Commerce College has decided to visit one of these places as the educational field trip for the students, as it will enhance the students' knowledge on Khasi literature, culture and traditions.

On the 19th of May, 2023, the Department had organized a study tour for the students of the 6th semester to visit Daiñthlen falls and Prut falls. The tour consists of thirteen students and five teachers.

The students have benefitted a lot from this study tour in which they got indepth knowledge about the history of 'U Thlen' (a giant serpent). The myth follows the story of how the Khasi people defeated and killed U Thlen, which is a man eating serpent. The fall is named after this myth because on top of Daiñthlen falls there is an imprint on a rock of a tail-like image believed to belong to 'U Thlen'. Although now, it is believed that the image was actually carved by Khasi ancestors. This shows that the Khasi people knew how to smelt iron from time immemorial.

Khasi myths like the myth of 'U Thlen' that links it to the Daiñthlen falls, helps in associating the Khasi oral tradition with the natural world. This also enriches the Khasi culture and helps in promoting tourism in the state.

The Khasi Department plans to organize more study tours in the coming future to help students have a greater appreciation for the literature they learn in class and allows for a holistic learning experience.

Session 1

Date: 9th November, 2022

Time: 11:15 am

Moderator: Prof. R. Sudarshan

Panelists: Prof. Lakshmi Arya Thathachar, Prof. Meera Baindur, Prof. Arya Mazumdar and Dr. Suraj Gogoi

Number of participants: 57

Rapporteur: Dr. Ridameka Chyne

Presentation 1:

The first presentation was given by Prof. Lakshmi Arya Thathachar.

The presentation was divided into three parts.

The first part of the discussion was on the key highlights of the NEP, 2020 which are as follows:

1. Multidisciplinarity- there should be a large number of universities offering courses in many disciplines rather than a single stream educational institution in order to make education more holistic.
2. Research- the culture of research should be encouraged in Higher Educational Institutions.
3. Internationalisation of Education- India should become a global study destination. High performing Indian universities should be encouraged to set up campuses in other countries.
4. Gross enrollment in higher education should be increased from the present 26.3 per cent to 50 per cent in 2035. The main focus should be on access, equity and inclusion.

The second part was on Liberal arts and Liberal Education Paradigm in India. The liberal arts paradigm is focused on:

1. Development of cognitive skills such as critical thinking, writing, reading, etc.
2. Inter- disciplinaryity and multi-disciplinaryity, and
3. Experiential learning

The third part was on the policy emphasis on Indigineism. Education should be made:

1. More culturally relevant, and
2. More India focused

Presentation 2:

The second presentation was made by Prof. Meera Baindur. The presentation was a philosophical reflection on the idea of the New Education Policy where the issue of pedagogy and anxiety was addressed.

Critique: the NEP has so much of demand of pedagogy. Education has to be experiential, holistic, integrated, inquiry driven, discovery oriented, learner centered, discussion based, flexible and enjoyable. Therefore it is a challenge to address all of the above in the classroom and this leads to anxiety among the teachers.

The anxieties that teachers may have due to the NEP implementation are power anxiety, anxiety of losing control of the classroom and of losing content superiority. This changes the dynamics and the teacher becomes more of a service provider than a pedagogue.

The speaker gave some remarks on the fundamental principles with a positive outlook on the design of the NEP:

1. The present system of education is content based and class based learning. There is a relationship between time and learning. How do we implement pace based learning in a general way to take care of the fast-paced and slow-paced learners. How do we integrate the new learner- centric system of education in this kind of an environment?
2. The biggest problem in implementing (inaudible) is the time period. A particular course has certain requirements and has to be completed within a certain number of classes but the student may want to do an obscure course in another school. So how does that school offer its time frame? Therefore, can we create avenues beyond time period and syllabus we take?
3. Uniformity of assessment (eg. Examinations, internal, external. etc) are very central and should be done away with. Courses should be more flexible and students should be able to learn different courses in different places of their choice.
4. A new classroom with autonomy will depend on faculty interactions and syllabus sharing. Rethinking the way courses are framed require radical ideas to design the syllabus.
5. Cross institutional faculty sharing should be encouraged as it will eliminate competition for admissions and students.

NEP, therefore empowers teachers and to be a good pedagogue, one has to be both a teacher and a learner at the same time and one should give up the disciplinary hierarchy.

Lastly, the implementation of NEP lies in changing content to process. The process of events on how to, where to and what we can envision.

Presentation 3:

The third presentation was made by Prof. Arya Mazumdar.

The speaker approached the NEP through two lenses:

1. From the point of view of a lawyer/ law teacher
2. From the point of view of an administrator

While analyzing the NEP from the policy/ legal perspective, the speaker offered a couple of suggestions:

1. It may not be possible to implement the NEP in its entirety. From past experiences, we have learnt that India is a land of wonderful laws but with very poor implementation. Therefore there should be an acceptable middle ground that we can seek to achieve.
2. The major changes that the NEP is suggesting such as multidisciplinary, experiential learning, etc. will take a considerable amount of time. The current policy has been 35 years in the making and therefore the government will not come up with anything new in the next 30 odd years' time. Therefore, the NEP will take some time to be implemented- if not in its entirety but in its majority.

The speaker also raised some valid points on what the NEP suggests but doesn't clearly spell out:

1. Many of the Liberal Arts Programmes offered in top universities in India are built on the Harvard model. Therefore, the approach may not be conducive to understanding the problems of rural India. Therefore, we should rethink our focus on the Liberal Arts Programme. Teaching is no longer about information exchange. It is about learning how to learn. Therefore, the focus should be on the process of learning.
2. Knowledge is no longer power but the skill of knowing what to do with the knowledge is the power. It is not only important for us to understand whatever text we are teaching our students, it is more important for the students to understand how to read such texts and how to grapple with complex philosophical questions. Therefore, it falls upon us as NEP ready educators to focus on our students developing the skills to apply whatever they want to learn in the outside world.
3. Multidisciplinary studies is essentially a problem of space and time. We have to undertake and open our minds to sharing our classrooms and our disciplines with others. Faculty sharing and sharing of classroom spaces and disciplines should be encouraged not only within a school/ a college/ a university but also between schools/ colleges/ universities. This can happen if we place our disciplines within a larger world view. Therefore one should focus on interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary approach when it comes to academic planning.
4. Finally, of the 22 principles that NEP offers, the most important one is ethics. Ethics is not to be taught in isolation as a single course. By offering ethics as a single course is like creating pigeon holes/ reservation and ghettoizing the question of ethics. Therefore ethics should be introduced in the classrooms by bringing in questions that are difficult and questions that need to be tackled at some point of time. For example, when students are trapped in a situation, would they choose the difficult path or the easy path and which one is more ethical?

Presentation 4:

The fourth presentation was made by Dr. Suraj Gogoi.

The speaker gave his analysis of the NEP with an attitude of skepticism and sheds light on some of the issues that the policy is silent.

1. There are some very elemental aspects of education which are outside of the policy which are still not addressed nor recognised.
2. Lack of infrastructure and facilities will make it impossible to implement the NEP in true spirit.
3. Although the NEP stresses on the culture of research, Higher Educational Institutions in India lack the space and infrastructure for doing good research.

Conclusive remarks by the moderator:

While reminding the audience of an important quote which states as follows: “Ah! That a man’s reach should exceed his grasp.. or what’s the heaven for?” the moderator remarked that the idealism and utopian nature of the NEP is welcomed. Although it may seem that the NEP is beyond our reach, we should not dismiss it as something utopian, but we should raise the standards and do our best given the circumstances.

Finally, the moderator thanked the panelists for the insightful and interesting comments.

Keynote Speaker on the first day session was chaired by Prof. Apoorvanand, Delhi University opined that the NEP 2020 might fail due to lack of feedback from various stakeholder. The NEP 2020 according to him was implemented without looking in to the set-backs of various region in term of it availability of infrastructure and remoteness.

Day 2

Session 2 (10th November 2022)

Speaker: Prof. Creamlimon Nongbri (Professor, Education Department, NEHU Shillong)

The speech began with a greeting from the speaker to all participants present in the Webinar. The area in which the speaker Prof. Nongbri, spoke is on ‘National Education Policy 2020 on North East India perspective’.

In her introductory speech Prof. Nongbri shares her view on the National Education policy 2020, that the policy was implemented without giving much time for consultation, discussion and feedback. Hence colleges in Meghalaya will have to face a lot of problem because of the lack of infrastructure and the human resource. The digital divide which exists in Meghalaya was heavily exposed during the pandemic because of poor network connectivity. Prof. Nongbri also spoke on the plight of the students in rural areas as these students “had to climb a tree on above the hill lock just to get signal on their network”.

In the North Eastern Hill University (NEHU) a central university, Prof. Nongbri said that the university are compelled to implement the four-year integrated programme in UG course. However as of now only PG course was started with the new syllabus which is in line with the NEP 2020. A central university like NEHU also does not have a strong manpower to tackle the problems in implementing all the policies in North East India which is a concern for all.

The topic in which Prof. Nongbri presented is on Vocational Courses in Meghalaya: The challenges and way forward. The University Grants Commission (UGC) implemented the multidisciplinary programme to move towards a more holistic education. Vice chancellors of all universities have been asked to implement the policy. Through this new policy 55% of learners will have exposure in schools and higher learning. Identification of skill areas will be tap through different vocational course introduce in the curriculum. It is said that employment will now be generated as students will be equipped with many skills to undertake any job or task available to them. However, when we talk of employability it is still a concern in Meghalaya because of less industries. We know that skill education is necessary for economic growth of the economy, so educational institutions have to work with industries by signing MOUs to place students for skills course. The National Skills Development Initiative 2009 was started to empower all individuals through improved skills, knowledge and this initiative of the government is a good start up in towards realising the dream of a skill nation. The National Vocational Education Qualification Framework is also introduced to formally integrate vocational education with the mainstream education. Over all the NEP 2020 is a comprehensive policy which tries to revamp the vocational courses.

Prof. Nongbri also spoke of the challenges in Meghalaya. She said that challenges are two-fold and that is (i)organisation and implementation (ii) theories and practical. Till date there is no detail framework to spark the interest of the learner. Students who opt in vocational courses is still considered inferior in front of other formal mainstream courses; this kind of mindset has affected the students because for them only formal education is considered in society as a dignified field. Lack of infrastructure and manpower has affected the roll out of the policy. To answer all of these problems the NEP 2020 has integrated vocational courses within the syllabus. Now this has paved a way forward for the colleges to look for new initiatives and projects. To improve technical and vocational development we also have banks like the Asian Development Bank (ADB) which supports through their different interventions. The success for colleges will now depend on how much the government can support by upscaling financial support. In Meghalaya colleges will have to adopt a multi-pronged approach by conducting research based on primary and secondary data. And based on the results of their findings, colleges can consider it as an opportunity for their way forward. Colleges can look for skills course which are local oriented e.g., Tourism, agriculture, electrician, plumbing, mechanic, bee keeping, horticulture, floriculture, food processing etc. Colleges can tie up with different NGOs and other technical institutions like ITIs. Only multidisciplinary course will not have to be made mandatory. But one has to strictly keep in mind that while framing a final curriculum it has to ensure that there is enough credibility and objectivity also has to be maintained so that awarding of credits will be maintain with the highest standard of academic quality. In Meghalaya the government has recently come up with a new scheme to help colleges setup vocational course in their campuses and this has already been rolled out so that colleges can apply for this scheme. Thus, now it all depends upon all colleges to set the ball rolling for a new change in the education system.

Speaker: Prof. Piyush Roy.

The resource person first stressed that engagement in the classroom needs constant change.

He put forth a question on the validity of the policy and how it will affect the education system. He adds that the Policy puts education as a priority as it reexamines the education system of India as it puts in context the dynamic changes in learning as one has to think beyond the traditional framework. He stressed on what the pandemic (Covid-19) did to society at a global level, that nothing stays the same.

The resource person reflects on his own career path as he moved from a journalist to a filmmaker and now a teacher which shows his own interest in people. He believes that the NEP will prepare students because it is more liberal in its approach to learning in comparison to the traditional approach to learning, by being more holistic, it gives students a range of options when it comes to career placement. The policy branches towards a multi-disciplinary space which would allow teachers to look beyond one discipline but rather how these disciplines 'converse' with one another. He ends his presentation by stating that the policy has refocused the process, delivery and discussion of education.

Speaker: Prof. V. Krishnappa

Prof. V. Krishnappa, takes a philosophically critical approach towards the NEP instead of seeing it as an ideal way of enhancing the education system in India. While the NEP seems like a good idea, there remains some issues which need to be clarified.

The structure of the NEP is such that it aims at extracting the most out of the best talents. But there is still the question about commitment to the students. The point being that it is unclear whether there will be significant benefits and in what manner.

There is also a change in the conceptual understanding of what higher education entails. Clarity on this issue is important. There is also the issue of whether the NEP could lead to situation where elitism becomes a problem in education.

On the pedagogical side, there is the issue of the kind of knowledge and knowhow that is required for the students which is in accordance with the present times. There is the need for enhancing the critical imagination of the students so that they can deal with the complexities and uncertainties related to the present society.

Keynote Speaker Reports

Profesor (Dr). Y. S. R Murthy V. C. R V University

The speaker address on the three aspects that needs to be addressed

1. Challenges
2. Regulatory Aspect
3. Practical Suggestions

He further expressed his experience working in the Jindal University for eleven years, he shared his prespective of Private State University . He visualizes the characteristics of an ideal University which consist of

- a. Academic and excellence in teaching learning process
- b. Full academic freedom
- c. Regulatory freedom
- d. Assured funding
- e. Capacity building and community engagement

The NEP provides a roadmap, a great plan to help provide quality education to all. Under NEP setting up of new quality education and professional educational institution have evolve into multi-disciplinary, merging of the institute in the same city is also allowed under NEP.

Despite the positive features of NEP there are several challenges and they include the following:

- i. Availability of adequate resources and participation of all stake holders with the government.
- ii. Funding challenges despite provisions made by the Government has not reach the education sector. The expenditure on education has not reach 6% of GDP
- iii. Opening of one university to meet the needs of education every week to meet its GROSS ENROLLMENT RATIO by 2025 as prescribe in NEP
- iv. Full institutional autonomy
- v. Policy , legislation and educational changes at all levels

A)Core of higher education system especially the private institutions

- i. The sustainability or revenue model is very important
- ii. Flexibility of students
- iii. 10% reservation for persons belonging to weaker section in education and public employment
- iv. Increasing access to the disadvantage groups in HEI

B) REGULATORY changes

NEW HIGHER EDUCATION COMMISSION OF INDIA which was mention in NEP consist of 4 vertical dealings with grants, accreditation, regulate.

The role of a regulator should be of an enabler and the mindset of Private educational Institution is more of a revenue generation rather than education .some regulation have damaged rather than improving the university growth.

The process of starting an Institution should not be complex .There is no need to separately identify the Private and Government institution in regard to finding research extensions.

STATE PRIVATE UNIVERSITY ACT needs to be amended in the light of NEP with their tight regulation and state university should not be differentiate with the government university and norms should be removed and made uniform and requires changes to implement NEP.
